

The Alternative Dispute Resolution Cell at the National Law Institute University (NLIU), Bhopal, would like to cordially invite you for the upcoming 2nd NLIU International Mediation Competition.

Last year, the Khaitan & Co. NLIU-INADR Mediation Tournament was the first of its kind to be organized and held in the country. It witnessed the participation of 32 teams from the top law schools across the country, more than 100 participants, and was judged by prominent and reputed mediators from around the world. The 2012 NLIU International Mediation Competition would be the second time the University would be hosting such an event in the span of one year.

This year NLIU strives to organize and conduct a competition that reaches greater heights. A total of 32 teams will participate in the upcoming event. In keeping with the objective of making the competition truly international in stature, participation will not be limited to India. It is expected that the competition would witness participation from teams belonging to a host of other countries.

NLIU has had a long association with International Academy Alternative Dispute Resolution (INADR), a leading international organization on mediation. As part of this association, INADR will hold a capsule training session for all the teams before the start of the competition. This will help the teams get acquainted with the process of mediation and will help them with the competition.
